The Green Prairie Farm family started organic growing methods with Great Grandma. She could be found almost daily gathering and collecting medicinal plants and flowers. Then she would use the plants and flowers to help her family and neighbors, with everything from the common cold to aches and pains.

The family continues in Great Grandma's tradition of allowing plants to grow naturally by feeding the soil and not the plant. This approach is our secret to producing the most therapeutically superior products; this coupled with our generational experience yields the best looking, tasting, and aromatic plants and flowers in Oklahoma.
